

COLLABORATIVE COMMUNICATION

An Applied Framework for Empathy-Based Peacebuilding

Collaborative communication is a model for clear communication, authentic human connection, and empathic understanding that has supported effective conflict resolution in a wide variety of international and domestic contexts. This course will offer these skills and perspectives to empower participants to understand and engage constructively with these bewildering dynamics. The course will use a wide variety of interactive activities and self-reflective exercises to bring the model to life and support deep experiential learning.

Dates: October 8-9, 2011 (9am – 5pm)

Location: Adelphi University, Manhattan Center (New York, NY)

Course Instructor: Tarek F. Maassarani

Conducted by: National Peace Academy in partnership with Adelphi University's University College

NPA Certificate Points: 2 certificate points CEUs: 1.4 CEUs

Course fee: $300 (inquire about reduced rates for Adelphi students!)

FOR MORE INFO AND TO REGISTER

www.nationalpeaceacademy.us

certificate@nationalpeaceacademy.us • (202) 556-1075

This course is part of the National Peace Academy's National Peacebuilding Peacelearning Certificate Program, a program designed to make learning for peace accessible, available and affordable for all. The program allows participants to pursue an individualized course of study that will help them achieve depth in knowledge and skills they need to achieve their personal and professional goals and interests in peacebuilding and peace education.